Christie's Incredibly Magnificent Jewels Of 2014

By Benji, Content Manager, Sunday, December 7, 2014, 0:00 AM EDT

Christie's has been able to give us quite a year for fancy color diamond news. In May 2014, it sold the largest Flawless Blue diamond, the 13.22 carat diamond now renamed the Winston Blue. They also broke the jewelry world auction record when they made over $150 million in sales, they broke the world record price for a red diamond in HK in November, and now last but not least they are giving us the last Magnificent Jewels show in NY. Will they break any more records? Nothing in the auction lists stands out as phenomenal, but as we all know, anything is possible!

We have quite a few items to focus on, including two stones that are from past Argyle tender events – one recent (from 2013), and one from the not too far past, 2003.

This time I will also be presenting the stones in the order of estimation of price by Christie's.

The star of the evening for us is a rare 21.30 carat Fancy Light Pink diamond of exceptional quality and color as it is a Golconda Type IIa diamond with VS1 clarity. It is estimated to sell at a price between $4 million and $6 million. Since the price spread is quite significant, I am sure we will see quite the bidding war here.
